

Acknowledgements	vii
About the contributors	viii
Introduction	x
Axel Harneit-Sievers, Sanusha Naidu and Stephen Marks
Part I Ongoing debates	1
African studies in China: a historiographical survey	2
Li Anshan
China in Africa: a maturing of the engagement?	25
Sanusha Naidu
Matching China's activities with Africa's needs	39
Sanou Mbaye
Part II Macroeconomic dimensions	55
China's strategic relations with Africa	56
Zeng Qiang
Chinese development assistance to Africa: aid, trade and debt	70
Nancy Dubosse
Trade, investment and legal cooperation between China and Africa	82
Hong Yonghong
Part III Country case studies	91
Ethio-China relations: challenges and prospects	92
Gedion Gamora and K. Mathews
China's impact on Kenya's clothing industry	108
Paul Kamau
The impact of Chinese imports on Nigerian traders	128
Edwin Ikhuoria
The dragon is not green enough: the potential environmental impact of Chinese investment in the DRC	139
Claude Kabemba
Disappearing forests, disappearing hope: Mozambique	155
Daniel Ribeiro
The West's retreat and China's advance in Angola	163
Elias Isaac

Part IV China, the African Union and the quest for peace	175
The Darfur issue and China's role	176
He Wenping
The role of China in peace and security in Africa	194
Desire Assogbavi
The role and place of the African Union in the emerging China–Africa partnership	201
Francis Ikome
Part V Perspectives for civil society participation	213
Chinese perceptions of African CSOs: how should African CSOs engage China?	214
Xiao Yuhua
Sino-African relations: reflections on civil society engagement	224
Antony Otieno Ong'ayo
The Global Environmental Institute: regulating the ecological impact of Chinese overseas enterprises	247
Zhi Yingbiao and Bai Jie
Conclusion	255
China–African civil society dialogue in perspective	256
Axel Harneit-Sievers, Li Anshan, Sanusha Naidu and Stephen Marks
Index	267